Golden Rules for Descriptive Writing

- Show, Don't Just Tell: Instead of saying "The market was noisy," write "The air echoed with the shouts of vendors and the honking of restless scooters."
- Use the Five Senses: Incorporate sensory vocabulary to describe what you can see, hear, smell, touch, and taste.
- One Continuous Paragraph: While you can break it into 2-3 small paragraphs, descriptions are often written as one well-structured, continuous block of text.
