INTRODUCTION

Good morning, respected Principal, dear teachers and my lovely friends. My name is Aman, and today I will talk about the pre-winter season. Pre-winter is the time just before winter. It comes after the rain and before the big cold. It is a very nice time of the year. I hope you will like my speech.

BODY

In this season, the weather changes. The mornings are cold, but the afternoons are warm. The sun is soft and friendly. The wind is cool and fresh. Many leaves fall from the trees. They are yellow, red and brown. The sky is blue and clean. I like to walk in the park and look at the leaves. It makes me happy.

At home, we start to wear a sweater in the morning. My mother makes hot tea and soup for us. I drink hot milk at night. My father takes my coat out of the box. We sit together and eat fruit. Oranges and apples are very sweet in this season. I love my family time in the evening.

At school, we play in the garden at lunch time. The sun is warm, so we sit outside and talk. Some children wear a jacket to school. Our teachers say, 'Do not get ill. Drink water and eat good food.' We must also wash our hands and go to bed early. These are simple things, but they are good for us.

CONCLUSION

Friends, the pre-winter season is short. Soon the winter will come, and it will be very cold. So let us enjoy these days. Let us go outside, play and be happy. Let us keep our body warm and our heart happy. Thank you very much for listening to me. Have a nice day.

INTRODUCTION

Good morning to our respected Principal, honourable teachers and my dear classmates. Today I am very happy to speak to you about the pre-winter season. This is the short period of time between autumn and the real winter. In our country, it usually starts in the middle of October or at the beginning of November, and it lasts for about four weeks. Please listen carefully, because I think you will find it interesting.

BODY

The first thing we notice is the change in temperature. The days are still pleasant, but the nights become cool. In the morning there is often fog on the roads, so drivers must go slowly. The trees lose their leaves, and the ground looks like a golden carpet. I love the beauty of autumn because the whole town seems to change its colour.

This season is also full of joy. We celebrate a big festival with lights, sweets and new clothes. Families meet, cook together and visit their friends. Farmers cut their crops and bring vegetables and rice to the market, so the food is fresh and cheap. My grandmother says that this is the best time to eat healthy food like carrots, peas and nuts.

We should also take care of ourselves. When the weather changes, many people get a cold or a cough. So it is important to wear a scarf and gloves in the early morning, to drink warm water and to sleep for eight hours. Doing exercise every day also keeps us healthy. On the weekend, I like to play cricket with my friends in the sunshine, because the afternoon is comfortable, not too hot and not too cold.

CONCLUSION

To sum up, the pre-winter season is a bridge between two different times of the year. It gives us pleasant weather, fresh food and happy family moments, but it also asks us to be careful. Let us enjoy every day of it, look after our health and thank nature for its beautiful gifts. Thank you all for listening so patiently.

B1Version 3 · IntermediateConnected ideas, opinions and reasons*

Red bold italic = B1 vocabulary word

INTRODUCTION

Good morning, respected Principal, esteemed teachers and my dear friends. Standing here before you, I feel both excited and proud. Today, I would like to share my thoughts on a season that is often ignored: the pre-winter season. It is the gradual period when the summer heat has completely gone, but the harsh cold of winter has not yet arrived. In my opinion, this short phase deserves much more attention than we usually give it.

BODY

First of all, the atmosphere during this time is truly special. The air becomes fresh, the sky is clearer, and the evenings are calm and peaceful. Many people feel more energetic because they no longer suffer from the heat. Nature itself seems to prepare for a long rest, as trees drop their leaves and birds begin to travel to warmer places. It is a wonderful reminder that change is a natural and beautiful part of life.

Secondly, this season is closely connected with tradition and community. In many regions, people clean their houses, take out warm clothes and gather for festivals and family meals. Farmers finish their work in the fields and are proud of what they have grown. These customs bring us together and teach students like us to respect our culture and to appreciate the hard work of others.

However, pre-winter also brings some challenges. Because temperatures fall quickly, fog and pollution can build up in big cities, which is bad for our environment and for our lungs. To protect ourselves, we should wear suitable clothes, eat fresh fruit and vegetables, and avoid staying outside late in the evening. I also recommend that we reduce the use of vehicles and plant more trees, because these small actions improve the quality of the air we all share.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, the pre-winter season is not just a waiting room before winter; it is a time to enjoy, to learn and to get ready. If we use these weeks wisely, we will meet the cold months with a healthy body and a positive mind. So, dear friends, let us welcome this season with gratitude and responsibility. Thank you very much for your attention.

INTRODUCTION

Good morning, respected Principal, distinguished guests, teachers and my dear friends. It is a genuine privilege to address such a vibrant gathering today. While most speeches celebrate the grandeur of summer or the magic of winter, I have chosen to speak about something more subtle: the pre-winter season, the quiet transition between autumn's warmth and winter's chill. I believe this in-between period holds lessons that are far more valuable than we generally realise.

BODY

To begin with, pre-winter has a distinct character that separates it from every other time of the year. The light turns golden and soft, mornings arrive wrapped in mist, and the air carries a sharpness that makes us feel wide awake. The colours of the landscape become vivid before they fade, as though nature were putting on one last performance. Consequently, poets, painters and photographers have always found endless inspiration in these weeks.

Beyond its beauty, this season teaches us the significance of preparation and the ability to adapt. Animals gather food, birds migrate and trees shed their leaves to conserve energy. Human beings, too, must adjust their habits; we change our diets, update our wardrobes and rethink our routines. Farmers and traders depend on seasonal produce, so the rhythm of the market is transformed, and communities discover the benefits of eating locally grown food.

Moreover, the arrival of colder weather reminds us of our responsibility towards the planet. If we want to make winter healthier and cleaner, we must adopt sustainable habits, such as using public transport, avoiding the burning of leaves and saving electricity. It is inevitable that temperatures will drop, but it is not inevitable that our air should become polluted. Our choices, however small they appear, shape the environment in which future generations will grow.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, the pre-winter season invites us to slow down, to observe carefully and to prepare wisely. Rather than resisting change, we should embrace it with curiosity and courage, just as nature does every year. Let us carry this spirit into our studies and our lives, remembering that every ending quietly contains a new beginning. Thank you for your kind attention.

INTRODUCTION

Good morning, honourable Principal, respected teachers and my dear friends. As the leaves fall off the branches and the evenings draw in, I stand before you to talk about the pre-winter season, a time when autumn begins to fade away and winter is about to set in. Let me start off by saying that I have always looked forward to this time of year, and I hope that by the end of my speech, you will too.

BODY

When the first cool breeze kicks in, the whole town seems to wake up with fresh energy. The morning mist gives off a magical glow, and the crisp air brings back childhood memories of playing in piles of dry leaves. This kind of nostalgia is powerful; it cheers up even the gloomiest of days. We head out for early walks, take in the golden scenery and pick up the fallen leaves as if they were treasures.

Of course, we cannot carry on as usual. Families get out their woollen clothes, stock up on dry fruits and put away their summer wardrobes. Doctors advise us to cut down on cold drinks, wrap up warmly before going out, and watch out for the sudden fog, which can come up without warning. Students like us should also keep up our exercise routine, because an invigorating morning workout can ward off coughs and colds far better than any medicine.

This season also teaches us resilience. Nature does not give up when the days turn into long, chilly nights; it simply slows down and builds up its strength for spring. We too must hold on during difficult times, look after one another and stand up for what is right, whether it is protecting the environment or helping out a neighbour who cannot cope with the cold.

CONCLUSION

To sum up, the pre-winter season is a gentle reminder that change should not hold us back. Let us soak up every sunny afternoon, reach out to those in need and bring in the winter with warm hearts. When the final leaf has dried up and fallen, may we look back and say that we truly lived this season. Thank you for listening, and let us always care for nature.
